Practicum Resources. Floorbook. The Influence of Prior Cyberbullying on Cybervictimization and Depression: A Comparison of Young Adults in Physical and Mental Health Settings. Although cyberbullying has increased, it is still understudied. We examine the role of cybervictimization in the development of depression through gender, mental health settings, and prior cyberbullying experience. Using the Cyberbullying Scale and the Depression, Anxiety, and Stress Scale, we investigate the association between the number of forms of cyberbullying, self-reported prior cyberbullying, and cybervictimization and depression. Participants were young adults ( $N = 354$ ) with a mean age of 21 years. We found that cybervictimization increased the risk of depression. Prior cyberbullying experience was associated with greater depression in the cybervictim group. Women experienced greater depression than men, and males reported greater depression than females when they were cybervictims. Youth in mental health settings had higher depression scores and were more likely to be cybervictims. Implications for future research and policy are discussed. Lethal force - Prosecutor's office press release (PR) 2 September 2014 The Prosecutor's office of the canton of St. Gallen has confirmed that a 30-year-old man from Solothurn has been charged with killing a security officer in an alleged attempt to flee the scene of a serious assault. A chase ensued as the suspect attempted to flee the incident in St. Gallen. The pursuit led to the 35-year-old security officer being injured by a gunshot to the face. The victim was taken to a hospital in St. Gallen and later transferred to a hospital in the canton of Zurich where he succumbed to his injuries. The suspect fled the scene of the assault and ran into a residence on the outskirts of St. Gallen. He made several attempts to get into the house without success. At approximately 10.30 a.m. he attempted to get inside the house. In doing so, he struck the security officer who was sitting in front of the house. The man was detained at the scene. He was handed over to the security services and was taken to the hospital in St. Gallen. The police subsequently searched the house and found a pistol with a live round in the chamber. The weapon had been smuggled into the residence by a criminal who had been brought into the house and who had been released from prison on the previous day. 82157476af
